He is introduced in chapter #25 A Rival? Arriva!!! (ライバル?参上!!; Raibaru? Sanjō!!), first published in Weekly Shōnen Jump magazine on May 21, 1985,[4 as Goku's fellow martial arts student under Kame-Sen'nin. As the series progresses, Krillin becomes Goku's closest ally and best friend as he fights every villain along with Goku or before him and is often depicted as the comic relief. Design and appearance Toriyama originally created Krillin along with the Tenka'ichi Budōkai as a method to help add depth to the story, as his editor Kazuhiko Torishima had stated that the series' protagonist, Goku, was too plain.[5] Torishima explained that in order to develop Goku's characterization, they needed someone petty and mischievous to provide contrast, thus leading to the introduction of Krillin.[6] Yūsuke Watanabe, who wrote the screenplay for the film Dragon Ball Z: Battle of Gods, had originally written the film to take place at Krillin and Android #18's wedding, but Toriyama wrote it to take place at Bulma's birthday party. Watanabe thought Toriyama made the change because he wanted fans to imagine the wedding for themselves.[7] Toriyama cited Krillin and Bulma's older ages at the end of the manga as a reason he chose for Battle of Gods to take place after the Boo arc since they were in their "strongest condition at that time." [8] Krillin's appearance stays relatively the same for the majority of the series. He is first introduced at age 13, with a shaved head and still dressed in the yellow-and-orange clothing worn at the monastery at which he had been training. He does not possess a visible nose, and has six spots of moxibustion burns on his forehead called jieba, a reference to the practice of Shaolin monks. Toriyama once stated, seemingly humorously, that Krillin's lack of a nose is because he has a "physical idiosyncrasy" that allows him to breathe through the pores of his skin.[9] Later, he wears the orange gi uniform that is presented to both himself and Goku by Kame-Sen'nin in honor of their first martial arts competition.[10] Occasionally he is seen in casual clothes, but for the most part continues to dress for training or fighting at all times.[11] During the Frieza arc, he wears Saiyan armor provided by Vegeta.[12] but during the Cell arc he returns to wearing the orange gi, accompanied by a blue short-sleeved undershirt and boots.[13] After the defeat of Cell, Krillin stops shaving his head, and grows his black hair out, before later shaving it again during Frieza's resurrection.[14] When he settles down with his family, Krillin is shown wearing a workout outfit consisting of a red "Tacos" T-shirt and brown drawstring pants.[15] Appearances in Dragon Ball Krillin first appears arriving at Kame-Sen'nin's island to become his apprentice,[16] meeting Son Goku, and the two become rivals. However, after doing the hardships that Kame-Sen'nin assigns, the two become friends. After finishing their training, Kame-Sen'nin has Krillin and Goku compete in the 21st Tenka'ichi Budōkai.[10] Krillin beats the odored fighter Bacterian, who uses his stench as a weapon, and makes it to the semi-finals. However, he is defeated by Jackie Chun, who is really Kame-Sen'nin in disguise preventing his students from becoming arrogant with too many victories. Krillin continues to train with Kame-Sen'nin and helps Goku to collect the Dragon Balls to revive their dead friends, since the Earth's Dragon Balls vanished due to Piccolo's death.[32] Once there, they save a young Namekian called Dende from death at the hands of Frieza's henchmen. Krillin receives an increase in power from Guru, the grand elder of the Namekians, when he unlocks his hidden potential.[33] After a few close encounters with Vegeta, Krillin and Gohan are forced to team up with him in order to fight Frieza's strongest warriors, the Ginyu Force. They are overpowered by them until Goku arrives and defeats the Force.[34] After Krillin and Gohan collect the seven Dragon Balls and wish back Piccolo, they begin a battle against Frieza, during which Krillin is stabbed in the chest.[35] removes Frieza's tail following being healed by Dende, thereby distracting Frieza from continuing to crush Gohan to death.[36] and injures Vegeta in an attempt to capitalize on his Saiyan ability to grow stronger when in a near-death state at Vegeta's request.[37] After a long fight between Goku and Frieza, Goku decides to use the Genki-dama, Krillin giving his energy to Piccolo so he can stall Frieza and attacking Frieza himself with his last bit of strength.[38] When the group recovers from the Genki-dama and Frieza emerges unscathed, the latter detonates Krillin from the inside, killing him instantly, which triggers Goku's first ever transformation into a Super Saiyan.[39] After Frieza's defeat, Krillin is revived by the Namekian Dragon Balls.[40] Krillin trains for three years to confront Dr. Gero who tries to use his androids to kill Goku.[41] Krillin is momentarily forced to leave his friends with the androids to take Yamcha away from the battlefield in the aftermath of his deadly encounter with Gero, who Krillin finds the base of and signals the others to his location after having a fight with Gero.[42] When the Androids, #16, #17 and #18 are released, Krillin is the only hero present that does not engage #17 and #18 due to his fear. After the duo defeat his friends, Krillin unsuccessfully pleads for the androids to spare Goku's life, and becomes infatuated with the female #18 after she kisses him on the cheek, and he then heals his defeated friends. After Krillin encounters the artificial life form Cell, Krillin and Trunks travel to Dr. Gero's laboratory basement, where Krillin kills Frost, the first version of Cell and the two discover the weakness to the androids is a deactivating controller, which Bulma constructs and gives to Krillin. Krillin soon after encounters #18 with the module and after a period of deliberation, destroys it.[43] Because of this, regardless of his efforts, Cell absorbs her and achieves his perfect form.[44] Enraged over her loss, Krillin engages Cell in combat, the latter standing in place while Krillin's attacks have no effect and striking Krillin only once, placing Krillin in a near-death state.[45] After Krillin is revived by Trunks, he warns Trunks of Cell's strength, having been able to sense his true power right before being attacked. He moves Vegeta away from the impending fight between Trunks and Cell, healing Vegeta during the battle between the two.[46] He later participates in the Cell Games, a martial arts tournament created by Cell for entertainment, and fights one of the Cell Juniors who attack him and his friends, but is saved by Gohan.[47] After Gohan punches Cell in the stomach, he regurgitates Android #18 and Krillin cares for her comatose body while Gohan destroys Cell. After Cell's death,[48] Krillin then travels to the lookout, where he uses the second wish from the Dragon Balls to remove the bombs from #17 and #18.[49] Seven years later, Krillin has quit fighting, settled down with #18, with whom he has a daughter named Marron (マロン; Marron).[2] This left Goku confused, until Krillin explained that Android 18 is a cyborg (meaning she is human still), and she was able to have a baby with him.[15] However, after learning of Goku's return from the afterlife to compete in the 25th Tenka'ichi Budōkai, he decides to also participate, also being encouraged to do so for the money by #18. During Goto and Trunks' match, Krillin worries that Trunks' energy attack will hit the crowd.[50] Krillin wins his sole match, against Pintar, during the competition with ease.[51] After the Kaio-shin enlists several of Krillin's friends to help him defeat the wizard Bobbidi, Krillin joins them, in doing so forfeiting his entry in the tournament, but is stopped from assisting any further thanks to Dabura turning him into stone with his spit.[52] Upon Dabura's death however, Krillin is freed[53] and he saves Goten and Trunks from the impact of Vegeta's self-explosion. Krillin later evacuates Earth after Majin Boo's awakening.[54] When Boo has transformed, he finds the temple and locate Krillin and his friends. After escaping the Room of Spirit and Time, he kills everyone present; in the anime, Krillin is the first to be killed after trying in vain to distract Boo so his friends can retreat. During Goku and Vegeta's fight against Boo, Krillin is brought back to life by the Namekian Dragon Balls and gives his energy to Goku's Genki-Dama attack, which is used to destroy Boo.[55] In Dragon Ball Super In the film, Dragon Ball Z: Battle of Gods, Krillin attends Bulma's birthday party; he later backs down from engaging Beerus due to not knowing his power. He then watches Son Goku's battle with the god.[56] In Dragon Ball Z: Resurrection 'F', Krillin works as a police officer[1] and after having his head shaven by Android 18, joins in the fight against the resurrected Frieza afterward, being one of the survivors of Earth's second destruction before its reversal by Whis.[57] After the events of the last two films, Krillin assists in acquiring two more members for his universe's team in a tournament, namely Piccolo and Majin Boo,[58] after learning about it from Android #18 and reunites with Trunks.[59] who he tries to stop from attacking Android #18 when she greets him, revealing her as his wife.[60] #18 tries to get Krillin a gift, preparation for their arrival. After Yamcha's death, he avenges his friend by killing most of the Saiybermen. In the battle against Nappa, Krillin tries to get involved in his fight with Tenshinhan after Nappa severs the latter's arm, though is stopped by Nappa.[26] Krillin double teams Nappa with Piccolo, creating multiple copies of themselves with the reluctance and the two travel to get Paradise Grass from an island, encountering large, physical versions of past enemies that Krillin becomes fearful of.[64] The two are revealed to be in the "Forest of Fear", Krillin saving Goku from a phantom of Super Shenron that the two destroy together.[65] Krillin is requested by Goku and Gohan for participation in the Tournament of Power; he accepts.[66] Krillin eliminates Universe 4's Shosa and Majora before being eliminated himself by Frost.[67] Krillin's shouts of encouragement for Android 18 contribute to her victory over Universe 2's Ribrianne.[68] and he feeds Vegeta a Senzu Bean after his elimination by Universe 11's Jiren.[69] Krillin later appears in a flashback after Frieza intends to provoke the wild Saiyan, Broly, into becoming a Super Saiyan, remembering the time that he murdered Krillin that sparked Goku's own transformation on Namek. He then promptly kills Broly's father, Paragus, in order to initiate the transformation in Broly, who was fighting Goku at the time.[70] In other media Krillin appears in two of the three Dragon Ball films; in the second, Krillin is used as leverage by Lucifer to convince Goku to give the Sleeping Princess to him.[71] and in the third, Krillin trains for the World Martial Arts Tournament, held in Mifan.[72] Krillin appears in twelve out of the thirteen non-canon Dragon Ball Z films; in the first movie, he assists during the battle against Garlic Junior after he kidnaps Gohan.[73] in the second, Krillin battles Dr. Willow, firing a Kamehameha wave in an unsuccessful attempt to defeat him.[74] in the third, Krillin unintentionally brings Turles to Earth by using the Dragon Balls to restore the forest after a fire and fights the Saiyan's henchmen; [75] in the fourth, Krillin tries to prevent the Earth from being destroyed by a meteorite containing Lord Slug and his henchmen.[76] in the fifth, Krillin sheds Goku after he is injured by Cooler and is defeated in a fight with Salza.[77] in the sixth, Krillin travels to New Namek and combats Cooler's forces.[78] in the seventh, Krillin avoids fighting Frieza and attacking Frieza himself with his last bit of strength.[38] When the group recovers from the Genki-dama and Frieza emerges unscathed, the latter detonates Krillin from the inside, killing him instantly, which triggers Goku's first ever transformation into a Super Saiyan.[39] After Frieza's defeat, Krillin is revived by the Namekian Dragon Balls.[40] Krillin trains for three years to confront Dr. Gero who tries to use his androids to kill Goku.[41] Krillin is momentarily forced to leave his friends with the androids to take Yamcha away from the battlefield in the aftermath of his deadly encounter with Gero, who Krillin finds the base of and signals the others to his location after having a fight with Gero.[42] When the Androids, #16, #17 and #18 are released, Krillin is the only hero present that does not engage #17 and #18 due to his fear. He then watches Son Goku's battle with the god.[56] In Dragon Ball Z: Resurrection 'F', Krillin works as a police officer[1] and after having his head shaven by Android 18, joins in the fight against the resurrected Frieza afterward, being one of the survivors of Earth's second destruction before its reversal by Whis.[57] After the events of the last two films, Krillin assists in acquiring two more members for his universe's team in a tournament, namely Piccolo and Majin Boo,[58] after learning about it from Android #18 and reunites with Trunks.[59] who he tries to stop from attacking Android #18 when she greets him, revealing her as his wife.[60] #18 tries to get Krillin a gift, preparation for their arrival. After Yamcha's death, he avenges his friend by killing most of the Saiybermen. In the battle against Nappa, Krillin tries to get involved in his fight with Tenshinhan after Nappa severs the latter's arm, though is stopped by Nappa.[26] Krillin double teams Nappa with Piccolo, creating multiple copies of themselves with the reluctance and the two travel to get Paradise Grass from an island, encountering large, physical versions of past enemies that Krillin becomes fearful of.[64] The two are revealed to be in the "Forest of Fear", Krillin saving Goku from a phantom of Super Shenron that the two destroy together.[65] Krillin is requested by Goku and Gohan for participation in the Tournament of Power; he accepts.[66] Krillin eliminates Universe 4's Shosa and Majora before being eliminated himself by Frost.[67] Krillin's shouts of encouragement for Android 18 contribute to her victory over Universe 2's Ribrienne.[68] and he feeds Vegeta a Senzu Bean after his elimination by Universe 11's Jiren.[69] Krillin later appears in a flashback after Frieza intends to provoke the wild Saiyan, Broly, into becoming a Super Saiyan, remembering the time that he murdered Krillin that sparked Goku's own transformation on Namek. He then promptly kills Broly's father, Paragus, in order to initiate the transformation in Broly, who was fighting Goku at the time.[70] In other media Krillin appears in two of the three Dragon Ball films; in the second, Krillin is used as leverage by Lucifer to convince Goku to give the Sleeping Princess to him.[71] and in the third, Krillin trains for the World Martial Arts Tournament, held in Mifan.[72] Krillin appears in twelve out of the thirteen non-canon Dragon Ball Z films; in the first movie, he assists during the battle against Garlic Junior after he kidnaps Gohan.[73] in the second, Krillin battles Dr. Willow, firing a Kamehameha wave in an unsuccessful attempt to defeat him.[74] in the third, Krillin unintentionally brings Turles to Earth by using the Dragon Balls to restore the forest after a fire and fights the Saiyan's henchmen; [75] in the fourth, Krillin tries to prevent the Earth from being destroyed by a meteorite containing Lord Slug and his henchmen.[76] in the fifth, Krillin sheds Goku after he is injured by Cooler and is defeated in a fight with Salza.[77] in the sixth, Krillin travels to New Namek and combats Cooler's forces.[78] in the seventh, Krillin avoids fighting Frieza and attacking Frieza himself with his last bit of strength.[38] When the group recovers from the Genki-dama and Frieza emerges unscathed, the latter detonates Krillin from the inside, killing him instantly, which triggers Goku's first ever transformation into a Super Saiyan.[39] After Frieza's defeat, Krillin is revived by the Namekian Dragon Balls.[40] Krillin trains for three years to confront Dr. Gero who tries to use his androids to kill Goku.[41] Krillin is momentarily forced to leave his friends with the androids to take Yamcha away from the battlefield in the aftermath of his deadly encounter with Gero, who Krillin finds the base of and signals the others to his location after having a fight with Gero.[42] When the Androids, #16, #17 and #18 are released, Krillin is the only hero present that does not engage #17 and #18 due to his fear. After the duo defeat his friends, Krillin unsuccessfully pleads for the androids to spare Goku's life, and becomes infatuated with the female #18 after she kisses him on the cheek, and he then heals his defeated friends. After Krillin encounters the artificial life form Cell, Krillin and Trunks travel to Dr. Gero's laboratory basement, where Krillin kills Frost, the first version of Cell and the two discover the weakness to the androids is a deactivating controller, which Bulma constructs and gives to Krillin. Krillin soon after encounters #18 with the module and after a period of deliberation, destroys it.[43] Because of this, regardless of his efforts, Cell absorbs her and achieves his perfect form.[44] Enraged over her loss, Krillin engages Cell in combat, the latter standing in place while Krillin's attacks have no effect and striking Krillin only once, placing Krillin in a near-death state.[45] After Krillin is revived by Trunks, he warns Trunks of Cell's strength, having been able to sense his true power right before being attacked. He moves Vegeta away from the impending fight between Trunks and Cell, healing Vegeta during the battle between the two.[46] He later participates in the Cell Games, a martial arts tournament created by Cell for entertainment, and fights one of the Cell Juniors who attack him and his friends, but is saved by Gohan.[47] After Gohan punches Cell in the stomach, he regurgitates Android #18 and Krillin cares for her comatose body while Gohan destroys Cell. After Cell's death,[48] Krillin then travels to the lookout, where he uses the second wish from the Dragon Balls to remove the bombs from #17 and #18.[49] Seven years later, Krillin has quit fighting, settled down with #18, with whom he has a daughter named Marron (マロン; Marron).[2] This left Goku confused, until Krillin explained that Android 18 is a cyborg (meaning she is human still), and she was able to have a baby with him.[15] However, after learning of Goku's return from the afterlife to compete in the 25th Tenka'ichi Budōkai, he decides to also participate, also being encouraged to do so for the money by #18. During Goto and Trunks' match, Krillin worries that Trunks' energy attack will hit the crowd.[50] Krillin wins his sole match, against Pintar, during the competition with ease.[51] After the Kaio-shin enlists several of Krillin's friends to help him defeat the wizard Bobbidi, Krillin joins them, in doing so forfeiting his entry in the tournament, but is stopped from assisting any further thanks to Dabura turning him into stone with his spit.[52] Upon Dabura's death however, Krillin is freed[53] and he saves Goten and Trunks from the impact of Vegeta's self-explosion. Krillin later evacuates Earth after Majin Boo's awakening.[54] When Boo has transformed, he finds the temple and locate Krillin and his friends. After escaping the Room of Spirit and Time, he kills everyone present; in the anime, Krillin is the first to be killed after trying in vain to distract Boo so his friends can retreat. During Goku and Vegeta's fight against Boo, Krillin is brought back to life by the Namekian Dragon Balls and gives his energy to Goku's Genki-Dama attack, which is used to destroy Boo.[55] In Dragon Ball Super In the film, Dragon Ball Z: Battle of Gods, Krillin attends Bulma's birthday party; he later backs down from engaging Beerus due to not knowing his power. He then watches Son Goku's battle with the god.[56] In Dragon Ball Z: Resurrection 'F', Krillin works as a police officer[1] and after having his head shaven by Android 18, joins in the fight against the resurrected Frieza afterward, being one of the survivors of Earth's second destruction before its reversal by Whis.[57] After the events of the last two films, Krillin assists in acquiring two more members for his universe's team in a tournament, namely Piccolo and Majin Boo,[58] after learning about it from Android #18 and reunites with Trunks.[59] who he tries to stop from attacking Android #18 when she greets him, revealing her as his wife.[60] #18 tries to get Krillin a gift, preparation for their arrival.
